

States of Awareness - Breakthrough Advertising Chapter 2

States	Who is this person?	What does your headline need to do?	Message Approach
5 - Unaware	The prospect is either not aware of his desire or won't honestly admit it without being led into it by your ad. This level is the most difficult.	Sell nothing. Promise nothing. Instead your headline echoes a dissatisfaction that picks people out of the crowd and binds them to a single statement. You are telling people what they are. Use Identification to call your market together.	Stories and Secrets
4 - Problem Aware	Knows he has a problem but doesn't see the connection between fulfilling their need and your product.	Name the need and/or its solution in your headline. Then dramatize the need so vividly that the prospect realizes how badly they need the solution. Your product is the inevitable solution.	Benefits and Fears
3 - Solution Aware	Knows he wants what the product does but doesn't know the product exists.	1. Name the desire and/or its solution in your headline. 2. Prove that the solution you just named can be accomplished. 3. Show that the mechanism of that accomplishment is contained in your product.	Claims and Proof
2 - Product Aware	Knows of your product but doesn't yet want it. The bulk of all advertising is here.	1. Reinforce their desire for your product. 2. Sharpen his image of the way your product satisfies that desire. 3. Show where and when your product satisfies that desire. 4. Introduce new proof/documentation of how well your product satisfies that desire. 5. Announce a new mechanism in that product to enable it to satisfy that desire.	Discounts and Deals
1 - Most Aware	Wants to buy your product but hasn't gotten around to it. Bottom of the funnel (they are likely already on your list).	Name the product and the price.	Product and Price
